

Privacy ^[1]

The following information pertains specifically to your privacy and the Australian Learning Lecture (ALL) website.

Anonymous access to this website

The ALL website can be accessed and browsed without disclosing your personal information.

Collection and use of personal information

This site does not collect or use personal information except that which you provide freely through online forms.

Disclosure

Personal information will only be used for the purpose for which you provided the information and will not be disclosed to third parties, except in exceptional circumstances or where we are authorised by law to do so.

Access and correction

You are able to access any personal information about you held by ALL. For further information about making such a request, contact us ^[2].

Cookies

The ALL website uses cookies. A cookie is a small piece of code placed on your computer which allows us to record information about your visit.

We use cookies to record usage statistics for this site, such as the number of visits, documents viewed, browser type, and the way the site is navigated. In using these cookies we do not retrieve or record any personal information such as names or email addresses. The anonymous statistical data we collect may be aggregated and used in broader statistical analysis.

Email addresses

We will only record your email address if you send us a message, subscribe to our mailing list or/and register as a user. It will only be used for the purpose for which you have provided it. We will not use your email address for any other purpose, and will not disclose it without your consent.
